

DUAL CAREER SERVICE AT MAX PLANCK SOCIETY

You are planning to work or recently started working as a director at the Max Planck Society? What about your partner's professional career?

Moving to another place for a new job doesn't only affect the employees, but also their closest family members, like partners or children. We aim to understand the specific overall situation and amongst others may provide an optional free service for the partners of our newly hired directors.

Dual Career Service

The Max Planck Society offers individual support to partners of newly hired directors in order to determine suitable career opportunities after relocating:

- Offering analysis of the German and regional job market
- Identifying job opportunities within academia and industry
- Establishing contacts with potential employers
- Offering advice on application strategies
- Screening of application documents
- Counselling on professional networking and integration
- Information on further training opportunities
- Information on dual career networks in the respective area

We are currently working on extending our service to a larger group of employees, such as research group leaders and post-docs. More information following soon.
